In view of Covid-19 restrictions, the Conference will take place in virtual format. On 29 March, the Day of Dialogue will allow for consultation between civil society, refugee-hosting countries, the EU and the UN. The Ministerial Conference will take place on 30 March.

--> Other Syria-related conference side events will take place the week before.

Background on the Syria Brussels conference

15 March will mark the 10th anniversary of the Syrian uprising. The conflict is still ongoing, the situation in Syria and the region remains highly critical, with the consequences of the COVID-19 pandemic and the deterioration of the economies across the region over the last year further exacerbating the dire humanitarian situation inside Syria and the conditions for Syrian refugees and their host communities in neighbouring countries.

The Brussels Conferences have over the years become an opportunity to reassert the international community's continued support to the UN and the UN Special Envoy's efforts for a negotiated political solution to the Syrian conflict in line with UN Security Council Resolution 2254. They also serve to mobilise necessary financial support to meet needs of Syrians and their host communities, as well as to pursue and deepen dialogue with civil society. In 2020, the European Parliament's Human Rights Subcommittee organized, jointly with the LIBE committee, the first EP side event to the Syria conference, focused on child protection in North East and North West Syria.
