

under the Names Rule? If so, how should each fund type be treated and why? For example, because the securities of closed-end funds and business development companies are not redeemable and may not be publicly-traded, does the 60 day notice requirement for changes to a fund's 80 percent policy provide meaningful protections to investors in such funds? If not, what changes are appropriate? Are there any other types of funds or other vehicles that should be treated differently under the Names Rule or under the general antifraud provisions of the Federal securities laws?³¹

- Are there other ways in which the Names Rule should be modified to provide greater investment flexibility while still requiring that fund names suggesting a certain focus effectively convey the nature of a fund's investments? Are there alternative ways in which fund names should be regulated or addressed that would more effectively protect investors? For example, through hyperlinks or other technology, should funds be required to connect their names to a more detailed discussion of the fund's investment strategy in a manner that is immediately accessible to investors in a variety of contexts? Are there approaches other jurisdictions or other regulated industries use that may work well for U.S. investors? Would a principles-based approach be better? If so, what should the principles be?

VI. General Request for Comment

This request for comment is not intended to limit the scope of comments, views, issues, or approaches to be considered. In addition to investors and funds, we welcome comment from other market participants and particularly welcome statistical, empirical, and other data from commenters that may support their views or support or refute the views or issues raised by other commenters.
